

Jung Cleveland Proudly Presents:

Dennis Patrick Slattery, PhD

Dennis Patrick Slattery, PhD

Professor & Author

“Myth and the Fabric of Culture” and “Riting, Writing, and Righting Your Personal Myth”

Lecture

“Myth and the Fabric of Culture”

Friday November 7, 2008 7-9PM

Held at The Unitarian Church (see reverse)

Psychology, Counselor and Social Worker CEU's : 2.0 units - $10 Fee

Dr. Slattery will present Joseph Campbell's perspective on the relationship between myth and history, examining what is historical about mythology and what is mythic about history. He will illuminate how both history and myth inform our current day- to- day life experience.

Workshop

“Riting, Writing, and Righting Your Personal Myth”

Saturday November 8, 2008 10AM-4PM

Held at The Unitarian Church (see reverse)

Psychology, Counselor and Social Worker CEU's : 4.5 units - $25 Fee
(Workshop fee includes continental breakfast)

Dr. Slattery will guide us in the discovery of our own personal myth. Jung's inner reflection led him to begin carving stone. In a like manner, we will chisel words in a journal, as we uncover the contours of the most dramatic story we will ever encounter, one that will be told only once: the drama of our personal mythos.

About the Speaker Dennis Patrick Slattery is a core faculty member at Pacifica Graduate Institute. Originally from Cleveland, Dennis attended Tri-C and Kent State. He has lectured across the US is the author of numerous books and articles. His recent publications include: A Limbo of Shards: Essays On Memory, Myth And Metaphor and (as editor), Varieties of Mythic Experience: Essays on Religion, Psyche and Culture.
