As we shall see, money is mercurial. It belongs to everyone and non one. We are all concerned with it. We think only that if we had more, all would be well with the world. Money is also a symbol of the past, of value, and of connection between people.

This lecture will explore some of money's myriad meanings and end by asking the question: Why is it that the world of money and the world of psychology seem mutually exclusive?

"Money is a singular thing. It ranks with love as man's greatest source of joy and with death as his greatest source of anxiety"

What is it about money that so enthralls and worries us? Why does it hav so much power in our lives and why do we generally find it so difficult to deal with?

This full day workshop will explore the meaning and psychology of money is a world which has reduced it to "just" a dollar sign.
